The proposal referred to in the said resolution dated 17th April 1867, 40, Old Board Street, London, will be found below.
Subscriptions are now invited from the Shareholders and general Public, in Bombay, for the shares described as "A" shares in the said proposal.
Each applicant must, on making his application, pay into the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China, the sum of Ten Rupees per share as mentioned in the proposal.
Applications should be addressed to the care of G. F. Rimington, Esq., Chairman of the Bombay Shareholders' Committee, and may be left at the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China, Elphinstone Circle.
Applicants in Bombay for 4's Shares will receive all allotments in full, to the extent of one half of the new capital or allotments rateably in proportion to their applications in case the applications in Bombay should exceed one half of the new capital required.
Forms of application for shares and further particulars may be obtained on application at the Office of the Commercial Bank Corporation, at Rampart Row, and at the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China, Elphinstone Circle.

A Conference of some of the principal Shareholders and Creditors of the Bank, took place on the 12th March, 1867, when Mr. David Chadwick was requested, with the consent of the Official Liquidator, to examine the Accounts of the Bank, with the view of considering the desirableness of reconstructing the Bank.
Mr. Chadwick, having completed his preliminary examination of the Accounts, in which he had the advantage of the friendly co-operation of Mr. Holyland, the Official Liquidator, and the assistance of Mr. Hardie, has reported that from the best information available, he is of opinion that the Assets of the Bank will be sufficient to pay all Liabilities, and leave a surplus of about £200,000 for division amongst the Shareholders.
This sum is equal to £5 per Share on 40,000 Shares, the Capital of the present Bank.
PROPOSED PLAN OF RE-CONSTRUCTION
A Dividend of 10s. in the £ having been declared by the Official Liquidator in February, 1867, it is proposed to obtain the assent of the Creditors, to receive the payment of the remainder (10s. in the £) of their debts by the following instalments, viz:—2s. 6d. in the £ in six months, 2s. 6d. in twelve months, 2s. 6d. in eighteen months, and 2s. 6d. in two years, all from June 1st, 1867, with Interest as contract rates, where any, and in the absence of such, at five per cent. per annum. The Interest on an unpaid Principal to be due at the date of each instalment, to be paid with such instalment, and Interest at the above rates on the principal already paid, to the date of its payment to be added to the first instalment. For these instalments the Creditors are to have the guarantee of the New Company, given by its promissory notes, as well as the continuing liability of the contributories of the Old Company, and if default be made in payment of any instalment, the Creditors shall become the Creditor of the Debtor may be called upon at any time to receive payment of his promissory notes, under discount at the rate of Interest included therein.
It is proposed that a New Bank, with Limited Liability, be formed for the purpose of taking over the Assets of the present Company from the hands of the Liquidator; the constitution of the New Company to be as follows:—
The Capital of the New Company to be represented by—
(1) 30,000 A shares of £ 10 each, representing a New Capital of £300,000, which will be called up as follows:

£1 per Share on Application,
£2 per Share on Allotment,
£2 on October 15th 1867,
£4 on April 15th, 1868.
} With power to pay up in full at any of these periods; Dividends being allowed on all payments, proportionate to the Assets of the old Bank over its liabilities. In case, however, at the end of two years from June 1st, 1867, when the actual balance of Assets over Liabilities will be ascertained, the same shall fall short of £200,000, each B Share will be liable to Calls to the extent of not more than £5, to make up its proportion of the deficiency.

(2) 40,000 B Shares to be offered rateably to the Shareholders in the old Bank, and to be represented by Scrip Certificates of £5 each, which will be provisionally considered as paid up, this representing £200,000, the balance estimated by Mr. Chadwick of the Assets of the old Bank over its liabilities.

If the balance of Assets over Liabilities, including expenses, shall be found at the end of the two years to exceed £200,000, then the B Shareholders shall be entitled to receive their proportions of the excess in cash, from time to time as realized.
Upon the fulfilment of the above conditions, the B Shares will be converted into one-half the number of fully paid-up Shares of £10 each, and the distinction between A and B Shares will cease.
In each of the first two years from June 1st, 1867, the profits shall be applied—first, in payment of a dividend of 10 per cent. on the A Shares; next, in declaration of a dividend of 10 per cent. on the B Shares, the payment thereof to be subject to the satisfaction, out of the Assets of the old Bank, of the liabilities undertaken on its behalf by the new Company; thirdly, in payment of a dividend at the same rate on all other paid-up Capital of the Company, if any: the residue of the profits in each year to be set aside as a reserved fund.
This proposal is to be carried into effect by the Committee of Shareholders appointed at the Meeting of the 4th instant, who shall have power to make such modifications therein as they may find necessary.
This project will benefit alike the Creditors and the present Shareholders of the Bank.
In the case of Creditors, it fixes certain days for the payment of the amount due to them with interest.
Their claims will be immediately represented by Promissory Notes of the New Bank, which will be available for discount or transfer; and they will also have the additional security of the £300,000 New Subscribed Capital, retaining all their present rights, as well against the Shareholders of the present Bank, as against third parties.
To the present Shareholders of the Bank, the project will afford the assurance that no further Calls will be made upon them for two years, and the probability of a considerable surplus being available, and applicable for Capital in the New Bank, at or before the expiration of that time.
The Assets of the Bank, which are principally in India and China, can undoubtedly be very much better realized and rendered more immediately available by an existing Bank, than under any system of Liquidation.
It is proposed in the Articles of Association of the New Bank, to insert powers for undertaking the Liquidation of any other Bank, charging a commission.

PURE AERATED WATERS.

TREACHER & CO. (LIMITED) invite the attention of the public to the superior quality and purity of their SUPER CARBONATED WATERS.
After attentive examination of the various methods of water filtration, and of all publications of authority upon the subject, they have finally adopted (as by far the most efficient purifiers) and for a considerable time past used, the PATENT MOULDED CARBON FILTERS; respecting which they have the pleasure to append an extract from the report of Dr. Hassall.
"From the foregoing experiments it appears that these Filters of compressed charcoal, possess the power of removing sulphuretted hydrogen, and other offensive and deleterious gases from impure water; that they are also capable of abstracting to a greater or less extent a variety of soluble organic and inorganic substances held dissolved in water; lastly, their mechanical action is very efficient.
"The Patent Carbon Filters, therefore, possess important chemical and mechanical properties. Altogether I regard them as the most valuable and efficient Filters as yet constructed."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ADVERTISING AT RAILWAY STATIONS.

The Proprietor of the "BOMBAY GAZETTE" PRESS having leased (among other privileges) from the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company, and the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway Company, the exclusive right of Advertising, at all the Railway Stations belonging to these two Companies, is prepared to contract with parties desirous of posting Notices, Advertisements, or Placards, at all or any of the Stations along either of the lines.

The announcements may be in English or in any of the Native languages.

The advantages which Railway Stations present as a means of bringing intimations of all kinds before the public have been demonstrated in England by the extensive use which is made by Advertisers, of every station, great and small, along every line in the United Kingdom.

Insurance Companies, Shipping Companies, Hotel Keepers, Merchants, Traders, and others, who wish to force their business on the notice of the public, all alike value the privilege of Railway Station Advertising.

There is no reason why the privilege should not be also especially valuable to Advertisers in India. Looking to the great and increasing number of Native Railway passengers on the two trunk lines of Western India, native merchants, traders, &c., (seeing that they have the privilege of advertising in their own language) should find the publication of their announcements at Railway Stations a lucrative means of extending their business.

Bhajans, according to the taste of Advertisers, may be printed at the Bombay Gazette Press.

Advertisers can select the Stations, on either line, at which they wish their Placards posted, and may advertise for any period that may be agreed on. The charges have been fixed on an extremely moderate scale to encourage Advertisers to make a liberal use of the new means now offered of making announcements known to the public.

Terms of Advertising may be learned on application to "The Manager, Bombay Gazette Press."

Bombay Gazette Press, April, 1867.

EXTENSION OF TIME IN POSTING OVERLAND LETTERS.—The Post Master has frequently unable to obtain early intelligence, on Overland Mail days, of the anticipated time of arrival of the North East Monsoon Trains, upon which the departure of the Suez Steamer depends, and having in consequence no means of giving the public timely notice of unavoidable detentions of 2 or 3 hours, it is hereby notified that whenever the departure of the Suez Steamer is obliged to be put off, notices will be sent to the Secretariat, Chamber of Commerce, and the Public Journals in the Fort, and one will be hung up conspicuously outside the Post Office gates for general information. To give the public the advantage of posting letters of importance to the latest hour, when such minor detentions occur, the Mail bags will be kept open for fully prepaid letters upon which the after-time fee is affixed, to within 15 minutes of the departure of the mail Vans, notification of which will be obtained at the Post Office.

The Bombay Gazette

FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1867.

Now that Mr. Dickson has left Bombay, may we be permitted to express a hope that we shall be spared a repetition of the childish impertinencies with which he has been assailed from day to day since he came here by the paragraph-writers and correspondents of our daily contemporary. It is not by Mr. Dickson's proposals of amalgamation, but by the manner in which these have been received by the cockneys of this city, that Bombay has been humiliated; and we were glad to see that Native Opinion, which does not approve of amalgamation, felt itself called upon the other day to rebuke the Times of India for the degradation brought upon that order of literature to which both papers belong by the spiteful and reckless personalities of which Mr. Dickson was made the victim. All this mud-throwing does not serve in the least degree to conceal the important fact that the scheme of reconstructing the Bank by local subscriptions has completely and hopelessly broken down. Not only is the number of shares tendered for by the public in the scheme put forward by the Reconstruction Committee extremely small, but it is notorious that a large proportion even of the three or four thousand tendered for consists of offers from menwho originally proposed to take shares in the new Bank, believing that the paid up capital would be limited to 50 lacs. So small a capital would, they thought, yield very handsome dividends, and perhaps (who knows?) allow the fortunate allottees to sell out their shares very soon at a high premium. We should like to know how many shares will be actually taken up, now that this promising little speculation has been knocked on the head by the stipulation in the letter from Government that the paid-up capital of the proposed new Bank should be at least a crore.

A preliminary meeting of shareholders has been called for to-day, and we think Mr. Macdonald, who is the chief—and as far as we can learn the only—European shareholder of position who is vehemently opposed to the amalgamation, owes an explanation to his fellow-shareholders and the public of the reasons that have led him to adopt what looks like the dog-in-the manger policy of insisting that the terms offered by Bengal shall be rejected even although the project of reconstruction has fallen to the ground. Let Mr. Macdonald show the shareholders what they have to gain by sullenly refusing to make any change in their position; and let him explain to the public in what way the creation of a new Bank here with a million of money subscribed for the most part in Bengal will do harm to the trade of the town.

WHEN Lieutenant Gordon Bigsby, of the Royal Engineers, took up his pen to disclaim the authorship of a letter which was contributed to the Times of India from a Mahableshwur correspondent, he did a thing which perhaps restored him to the favour of the lady Croquet players at Mahableshwur whose performances had been described with a little chilling sarcasm and some want of gallantry. [illegible] ght in this supposition we can [illegible] Lieutenant Bigsby, and could almost wish ourselves in his happy situation as the smiles returned to the pretty faces of the justly offended ones. When by the simple process of writing a dozen lines to "a paper" there was so much earthly happiness to be gained, we cannot wonder at Lieutenant Bigsby's determination to bear no longer than was possible the frowns of fair faces; we could even understand him challenging the whole Press of India to mortal combat if the conductors of that press declined to advertize his stout denial of the soft impeachment of saying cross things of the fair sex. Our contemporary has fortunately undone the mischief which threatened Lieutenant Bigsby by readily inserting his letter. He is now both a free and we trust a happy man for being known as the correspondent who did not write the Mahableshwur letter to the Times of India.

But short as is Lieutenant Bigsby's letter to the Times of India, it is a little too long for the purpose of the denial: the last two lines of the letter have a deep interest for the press, and as they are now public property we are glad of the opportunity they afford for free comment. Lieutenant Bigsby concludes with these remarkable words:—"this letter which I now address to you being the first I have ever written to a paper in my life." This is the language of a representative man of the old school of officers who pretended to regard "writing to a paper" as an offence equally ungentlemanly with picking a pocket. Lieutenant Bigsby clearly did not mean that he could not write to a paper—rather the reverse—but he was anxious to have it placed on record that he had never done so, and would not have done so in this instance, but that his identity—not his calibre—was mistaken. He would not have been guilty of the mean offence of communicating his ideas to the press for the benefit, instruction, or even amusement of the readers of "the papers." When the Indian Press was struggling through the early years of its existence, there were no better pens freely offered in defence both of its liberty and its character than the pens of military officers. The press has never been slow to acknowledge its obligations in this respect, and it is quite true that as its columns was largely fed by military men, journalism derived its tone from its chief supporters. During the first half of the present century, the military body in India formed in the main the reading class, and in no small measure the writing class also.

Before society was formed of various elements, and while it consisted, even in the Presidency towns, chiefly of officers of Government, [illegible] was frequently regarded as an offence against Government to communicate information of any kind to the press, and when, as sometimes happened, anything of importance "leaked out" the offender was sought for, and wigged or otherwise punished when discovered. Suspicion of dealings with the press was often sufficient to ensure the frowns of men in authority. It has happened too in military circles, when the conduct of commanding officers and others in high office has been subjected to public discussion, that direct questioning of subordinate officers has been resorted to for the purpose of ascertaining who had supplied the leading facts; gentlemen appearing to see no impropiety in resorting to the miserable alternative of doing under authority what they dared not attempt as private individuals. Under such a system the prospects of the known or supposed friends of the press were often made to suffer, and frequently by an unseen though well understood blight. It was not enough in many stations to be pure from press defilement, but it was even demanded that officers must, like Cæser's wife, be above suspicion. The power, and influence of the press could only rise by very slow and imperceptible steps to any commanding position, while the strength of military rank was brought to bear against its contributors. While it was unsafe and unprofitable to be a recognized friend of the press; and while officers could not openly exercise the power of their pens, it was natural that the position of press contributor should become contemptible in circles where free discussion was dreaded. Those who were too indolent, and those who from want of literary ability were unable to help the press, were the loudest in fixing reproach upon those who could and would do so; and the opinion became fixed that "writing to the papers" was not respectable. The men who engaged in establishing this opinion did not themselves believe it, and that it was ever permitted to do duty in intelligent circles must be attributed to the known weakness of a press which was manfully struggling to be free. Thus there were many Lieutenant Bigsbys who could with the greatest honesty declare that they "had never written to a paper in their lives."

Happily the press in this country has become an institution of no mean importance: and though officers may not yet affix their names to their writings, the press has the honour to possess both the direct sympathies of many valued military contributors, and of a large circle of military readers. In this connection we cannot say a word in dispraise of our military friends. Commanding officers, and others have come to know the value of a free press, and to know also that it is supported by military pens. Instead of it being the rule now to persecute press contributors, their labours are winked if not connived at. We are far from wishing Lieutenant Bigsby a denial of all the reward which the Croqueting ladies of Mahableshwur and his other best friends could wish for him, but we do wish that he may never again be induced to rest those claims in any measure upon the proof that he never "writes to the papers." We may assure him that there is some virtue in being able to write to the papers in an intelligent manner, and that it is not every man who can accomplish this, or accomplish it without making a fool of himself. If Lieutenant Bigsby will be guided by us, he will—now that he has actually passed the rigid rubicon and written a letter to the papers—overcome his sworn prejudice and resuming the very goose quill which awakened the literary world to hear the awfully solemn confession that "he had never written to a paper in his life," proceed immediately to inflict a sweet retaliation upon the veritable Mahableshwur correspondent of the Times of India whose propensity for mischief and chaff lost him (Bigsby) for a short season the smiles of the Croqueting ladies of the hills, and threatened him with other derangements besides. In this happy exercise he may come completely round to our way of thinking, and learn to believe that writing to the papers, so far from being a vice which belongs to baser minds, is a virtue, in the proper exercise of which, there is much to gratify even a noble intelligence.

We hope to be pardoned for the freedom of our remarks on Lieutenant Bigsby's letter; but the opportunity for saying a good and honest word in favour of our esteemed military contributors was too welcome to be rejected, and Lieutenant Bigsby formed the most convenient peg within our reach to hang an article upon. He may have intended to regain his lost position amongst the ladies of Mahableshwur, while at the same time he proclaimed his contempt for the press. We could not be expected to be pleased with the inferred compliment of the indignant Lieutenant, but we are nevertheless disposed to be extremely friendly to the man who has helped us to the subject of a cool article during a very hot day in May.

Sitana: A Mountain Campaign on the borders of Afghanistan in 1863. BY COLONEL JOHN ADYE, C.B., Royal Artillery. London: Richard Bentley.

When the five thousand men entered the Pass of Umbeyla to turn the rear of the Mulka band on the Mahabun, they commenced offensive mountain warfare, which Colonel Adye characterises as the "prosecution of a difficult art, under trying circumstances;" and this was at once self-evident: instead of a practicable road for troops as the political agent reported, it was but the bed of the mountain stream, high overhung on either side by a frowning ridge studded with sunburnt granite rocks, tufted with trees, shrubs, and ferns, hiding it from the sun. After traversing the pass some miles the scenery changed, the trees and shrubs were those of a colder region, and fir trees crowned the heights. Fortunately there was a small stream of water trickling down the pass from the watershed; it ran leisurely round the great boulders, and occasionally rested in small pools where the soldiers and animals drunk of it. Picturesque as it was, big masses of rock [illegible]

into the valley, destroy Mulka, and fight the way back again into the open plains; and, though General Chamberlain was much blamed for remaining where he did, yet it was about the only choice remaining him, for the detachment which entered the valley was discovered and dire offence given the tribe of Boneyrwall, a body of which endeavoured to cut off its return.

To have gone back, would have shown fear,

The Punjaub force always keeps its complement of mule transport, well trained, and adapted to move at any moment—but when the forces under control of higher military authority move, the huge machinery of the Commissariat is indented on, and that always being insufficient for operations in the Field, raw baggage animals are entertained, and brought together,
and, when the time for loading them arrives,
it is discovered perhaps that pack saddles indented for on some distant magazine have not as yet appeared, and when they do appear,
the tender backs of ponies, and mules, unaccustomed to carrying baggage, become galled and raw in two marches. This was exactly what occurred in the Umbeyla campaign. It is
